LOVED THESE BOOKS!

Gave these books a 4 combination as that is how I purchased them...as one single download...I gave the first book about a 4 1/2 and the second book about a 3 1/2. With the title of the books, I made some assumptions about the stories that DIDN'T come true...perhaps a little bit of false advertising, or is it how we perceive what we read in a title...I am unsure. Either way, way too unrealistic, remember, story is only "based on a true story"...not "actually" a "true story." Once you put that aside, I enjoyed the books very much. Will look for more with this author.

Don't judge a book by its cover runs true for Haunted Prophecy of Natalie Bradford. My one critique is that this cover does not do it justice. Somewhat misleading.

I don't read horror, and that is NOT this book, but it is instead a combination of reality and paranormal.

There were two parts combined into one book and i'm glad that's how i read it!

A murder in the south in 1974. The husband gets off- bastard. And is free to choose a new victim....who is it?

The nurse who treated him that night in the hospital.

I won't give away the story-line but suffice it to say that once Nancy marries him her world opens up to a whole new realm of reality. Based on a true story, L. Sydney Fisher takes the reader on a 'read with the lights on ' verbal ride. (i normally read in the dark with a booklight)

I suggest you read with an open mind and enjoy!

Very scary true paranormal account of this lady Natalie Bradford and what she went through living in a house that was haunted by her husband's previous wife. A gripping page turner and edge of your seat book. Don't forget to leave the lights on with this book.
