No

I did not like the "telling" of the story. I got bored very quickly and could not finish the book.

Mandy Parmenter says

Kataline is a genetically engineered human who has been educated ready to bring peace to Earth - not that anyone bothered to ask her is she was happy to do that. Kerr is the alien Prince of Euthenia and he is the one she is being given to. However when they are travelling to Euthenia the human colonists from Earth start an uprising and Kataline is imprisoned by her father and starts to wonder if that was his plan all along.

This was a story with Kataline and Kerr as main characters but it covered their parents and friends too. Whilst it started in a very misogynist society it soon moved to a society where women were at last equal and able to have their own lives and hopes and dreams. I liked that the society was able to develop and correct many of the past wrongs by the younger generation. I did find it a little rambling and thought that the focus on the older generation was a little misplaced in a book with the title Kerr. The descriptions of emotions were clear and easy to understand and the writing was good.

I don't think I've ever given a one-star rating before but I couldn't give this book two stars. It's been awhile since I received this book from the author and I couldn't find it on Amazon. I did find several other books that she's written since I received this one and they have decent ratings so I'm guessing she took the reviews on this book to heart.

The way Awarded to the Alien is written makes me think that the author may have been trying too hard. It needs a good edit. But that's just the beginning. There are several things that don't make sense, such as Kataline being an advanced human being made from the DNA of scientists, geniuses, and beautiful people, and she has read many romances, but she is clueless. Beyond clueless when dealing with Kerr. It is frustrating for the reader and makes no sense.

I can't recommend this book as it is at this time.

Dee says

“Kerr” by Ashley Hunt is a fantastic premise, genetically engineered earth female meets hot alien prince... forced political marriage, off world setting with compulsory submission (hey, don't judge me...) and plenty of... ahem... well you know. For the most part, I thoroughly enjoyed Kerr and Kataline's story which included likeable characters, plenty of intrigue, romance, instant chemistry and... ahem... well you know. It kind of fell apart for me half way through the book when entirely new characters were introduced. Initially, I found myself a bit confused but quickly realized it to be a subplot (duh...). However, I'm kind of selfish... I don't want to share the main protagonists story with other characters, unless of course it's a... ahem... multiple partner scenario... (did I really just say that!?). Although the story flowed, I found it a bit lengthy, the dialogue somewhat stiff and frequently the sentence structure seemed a bit odd or awkward (not that my reviews are ever a bit odd or awkward...).

Ultimately, I've rated "Kerr" at 3.5 stars but my recommendation is to download a sample and decide for yourself.

Disclaimer: No Kindles were harmed writing this review, children 18 and over only!

This is quite an interesting story.

Earth is on the brink of being destroyed by an alien race. So they come up with a plan to raise genetically engineered females to award to certain of the aliens to make alliances. This a short read with a cliff hanger which I did not mind at all because it was well written and made me want to read the rest of the story. I received this book free in exchange for an honest review.

I hate this book

I chose the rating because it was so boring that I couldn't force my self to finish the book. The diary style prose that bounce between characters is novel but the repetition of the story line is annoying. I also dislike her characterisation because it seems like that all but the main female have no real personality. The alien husband just seems to be kind to get what he wants then pushes her to eat bugs and dirt. I don't care what planet they are from, he chose to accept her, he should have food for her. Then most of the time the character just gives in which is stupid. If you like insipid female characters go for it but I won't get anything else from her.

I dont even want to finish this book. This is horrible!

Besides the authors writing style she just lost me. The deflowering-virgin scene was just ridiculous/eye-rolling and insensitive on so many levels.

But what bothers me the most is that he (the husband) punishes her for leaving the room (without asking! the bitch) and after beating her ass with a rope of some sort she says "thank you, sir, for teaching me my place."

WTF??? Are you kidding me?

She is supposed to be intelligent AND defiant, at least that's what the author tells us, just to show us the most submissive thing I ever encountered.

And it doesn't even stop there! She almost apologizes to him that HE had to go through this!

He didn't even tell her the rules beforehand which she is supposed to follow, but punishes her nonetheless!

I want to scream at the author, the maincharacters and the whole setup!

NO! Just no!

Denise says

3.5 stars. This book is longer than I expected and actually switches between several POVs including some unexpected ones. I sometimes found it hard to remember whose POV I was in, and it wasn't always clear by the prose.

The book starts off with Kataline, an earth woman who was genetically created. She has been presented to the prince of an alien planet as his bride. She does not like this idea, but has always assumed she was to be used politically in some way so she is not surprised. Kataline is not sure her husband-to-be knows what he is getting himself into. She is sure he is unaware of her intelligence and is going to expect complete submission, something she is not planning on giving.

Kerr is from the planet of Euthenia where there are human settlers that are not conforming to the local ways. Euthenians are physically limited to having two children since the native women only have two eggs. The humans are not limited in this way and could eventually use up the available resources of the small planet. Kerr is personally not against the thought that his human wife could present him with more than two heirs. His brother was killed as a child, as so he is the sole heir to the throne.

The trip back to Euthenia is complicated by the news that a human uprising has occurred on the planet. Kerr's father is sure that Kataline has knowledge of the uprising and makes things very difficult for her and Kerr.

Meanwhile, on Euthenia, we meet Caleb and Emerald. They are two of the human settlers on the planet and things there are not going well. They are stuck in a desolate part of the planet with no access to things like indoor plumbing or electricity. But is this the fault of the current King, or is something else going on?

The two parts of the story will eventually meet up. There are a few surprises and a lot of epilogues to let us see the future of all the primary characters. I enjoyed the stories, even if the telling is a bit awkward at times and things do not always make sense. I think the changing POVs is more of a hindrance than a help.

R.G. says

While I can't say it's the worst book I ever read, I'm definitely glad it was free. The book had an interesting premise with Kataline being an intelligent head strong woman who doesn't plan to give in easy to the rules applied to women on the new planet she's going too. And Kerr turns out to want to change those rules as well. The problem began when they finally meet each other and they're both about to faint with sudden attractiveness, the level of cheesy was nearly unbearable. And while Kataline has been locked away from the world, she's supposed to be highly intelligent and educated, as well as having said she read plenty of romance novels, and yet she thinks the way she's turned on by Kerr must be an allergic reaction? Plus the romance was really brushed over quickly, and for Kerr to be someone who wants things to change he lets everyone walk all over Kataline. And Kataline sounds more like the empty headed female she keeps denying she isn't, instead of the described intelligent woman Hunt is trying to push on you. I shouldn't have to be repeatedly told someone is intelligent if they just actually sound intelligent. But the real kicker is that the book ends about half way through an actual story, and before you really get invested in anything that's going on. The fact that there was an extra book by her within this same world attached to the ebook I bought, and I didn't at all feel like reading it says volumes. If she wanted to attach something within this world, why not just finish this story so I can know if I want to invest any more in these stories? Ultimately, even free it's a waste of money.

Wow! What a great start to what I hope is a great series

Talk about a page turner. This is it. I cannot wait for the next story. I have to add this. This story is complete and intriguing and makes me yearn to know what happens next. I'm thinking this is the cusp of a fascinating tale and I want more. Thank goodness more is to come. P S. Sign up for the newsletter to get the other side if this story. It's crazy good. And not like any book or series I've ever read. And I'm not just a reader but an author too. Count me in as a fan if this author and if you think you don't like sci fi give it one more shot. Ashley changes it up and I'm loving it!

"I glare into his eyes. "Because I am not used to being talked down to. That's why."

"You should get used to this. It's how you will be talked to once we get home anyway." Kerr smiles."

And he's serious. He's not joking. And here is where the book lost me.

My Score: 5 ?????

Well isn't this something, I just started this book which is another new author for me. I have to say this is an extraordinary SciFi read.

Can you imagine your whole life on the planet Earth and your power hungry father who basically genetically engineered her to be the smartest, most perfect woman she has ever seen because Kataline knew she wasn't. Learning about the planet Euthenia Nebula that it has two Suns one is bigger than the other and three moons which are always visible. Kataline was scared of this outcome marrying a man she didn't know never ever met didn't even know what he looked like. What if he beat her she will be on a different planet. There was no expense spared for this wedding, hundreds of people came people she didn't even know she was so scared, as she walked down the aisle barely seeing through her veil, she saw her soon to be husband. Kataline couldn't believe her eyes he was the handsomeness man/alien she ever saw oh my she might pass out.

Prince of Euthenia, Kerr loves his planet his people that is why he decided to take the reward offered. He wanted a change for his people, than when he became King he could implement his changes he wanted.

When he saw his reward he knew he made the right decision.

I was gifted this ARC for an honest and truthful review.

CV says

Kataline is a genetically enhanced human. She was created from fifteen different DNA to get the perfect human. Her father, the senator, gave her to Kerr, Prince of Euthenia, as a peace offering. Neither one had met the other until she walked down the aisle for the wedding. There is instant attraction between them. While they were on the ship heading back home, Kataline kept hearing voices in her mind and developed powers. When I read this, all I could think about was Breaking Dawn from the Twilight series. She is able to move things or make things stop with her mind, put a shield around people so that no one can touch them and show what could happen in the future if things didn't change from the current path. Sound familiar?

In the middle of the book it switches to Caleb and Emerald as the main characters. This was very confusing at first. I wasn't sure if I was reading another book or what. After reading for a bit, you come to understand that the author is telling what was happening on Euthenia at the same time as what was happening with Kataline and Kerr. So the first twenty-four chapters are about Kataline and Kerr and then chapters twenty-five to thirty-seven are about Caleb and Emerald. From there to the end it is a combination of all the characters in the book.

I was looking forward to reading this because I am a big Paranormal Romance reader. This was just disappointing. It started out good, but it just went down from there. I enjoy a good sex scene, but there were just too many in this book. It seemed like after every event there was sex afterwards.... Get married, have sex; She gets locked up, they have sex; It's night time, they have sex; He finds out his father may have killed his mother, they have sex. Well you get the idea. It was good at first, but then I wound up skipping over the sex scenes just to get to the story. And then with Caleb and Emerald, it was back to event, sex, event, sex. I think the book could have been half the length if you cut out all the sex.

And what was with all the Epilogues? There were five different ones. Kerr, Caleb, Kataline, Emerald and then Kerr again. Each one was a few years after the previous one. Sometimes it's good to draw your own conclusions about what happens next. With this, everything is laid out there with nothing left to guess. So no need to worry about a cliffhanger. There is definitely not one.

I voluntarily reviewed a Hidden Gems ARC of this book.

Angela says

I have zero idea how this book has such a high rating. The writing and language is like a regency historical romance where everyone speaks very stiffly and formally. Here is an example:

"Father I might faint. I might go weak in my legs. Please do not allow me to fall," I say in a whisper as I have not enough breath to speak any louder."

This, of course, happens as she see her groom (a very human looking alien) and goes all a-flutter. There is a ridiculous scene where he is undressing her in their hotel room for the first time and she thinks she has a medical issue or possibly an allergy to her husband because her virginal self becomes breathless, flushed, and wet when she sees her naked groom. Yes, yes it's that sort of book. I stuck with it as one might a movie so bad it's funny (or maybe a train wreck), when I realized that the author was getting paid for every horrible page I was reading on Kindle Unlimited. That's when I quit and returned the book. Unless silly virgins and men whose body are "naturally made that way" to have six packs, speaking like a BBC historical drama, are your thing, opt out.

Hannah says

I never give such low reviews because it makes me feel so mean.

But seriously, how is this even published? The characters are so unbelievable and naive to the point of ridiculousness and the grammar and overall lay out of this book was pretty bad. Basically discard the fantastic reviews because I suspect they're fake.

I'm not even going to put it on my read list because I just can't believe I wasted time reading this
