Troyd isn't like most teenage gods. He's not extraordinary — he's extra ordinary.

He lives on Mount Olympus, where the gods have day jobs working for major gods like Zeus. But rather than being a delivery boy for Mercury, a firefighter for Prometheus, or a wine steward for Dionysus, Troyd dreams of becoming the kind of god people will remember: a Love god like his idol, Cupid.

Long ago, Cupid used his bow and arrow to become the king of matchmaking. But when Cupid retired, he opened Cupid's Academy, a school where teenage gods and goddesses, now armed with magic pistols and love potions, study to become Love gods, matchmakers for the human race.

To graduate, Troyd must improve his grades. But soon his overzealousness lands him in hot water with the headmaster, getting him suspended. Yet to get back in, Troyd is forced to leave Mount Olympus for Earth, where he uncovers a secret that may shut down the Academy forever — only to find help from a girl who gets him to see love from a different point of view.

Cupid's Academy: The Miseducation of Mergatroyd, Love god in Training is a humorous adventure filled with lovable characters, stays true to the classic Greek stories, and is a great way to introduce young adults, ages 10 to 16, to a modernized version of the Greek and Roman mythology.

I honestly couldn't wait to get to the end. This was both a romantic and dramatic (naturally) take on Greek Mythology with the perfect amount of suspense and humor. Tai I could easily imagine exactly how every character looked, their every facial expression and even what their voices would sound like. You definitely did your research and inspired me to want to brush up on my Greek Mythology...why wasn't I THIS interested when I had to learn it the first time around? I can't decide if I have more of a crush on Mergatroyd or Cupid...Senior!

Awesome "history" lesson wrapped into a tale of romance and DRAMA! It makes me want to dust off the old mythology text from high school. I'll admit to laughing out loud a few times and I could not wait to get to the end. Well done Tai!

I was so excited to read something different and since I love Gods/Godesses I thought this would be a fun read. Unfortunately I found it to drag and be very predictable. I am glad it was a short read since I pushed myself to finish it. Sad that this story didn't work for me.

Hello reader!

I realize it's shameless promotion on my part but as a self-published author, I thought I'd post the following review from an ABNA (Amazon Breakthrough Novel Award) Expert Reviewer.

"This was a really great story; funny, clever, creative and very unique. The writer had me laughing and smiling and hanging on every word. I love Troyd, even though I hear Snagglepuss say his name everytime I read it. :)

I love the author's imagination and the way he/she translated it to the written page is excellent. I was easily hooked into his/her world.

This is a very fun story. I adore books that can make you laugh and smile like an idiot the whole time your reading.

The author has put an interesting and exciting spin on the gods and goddesses we all know and their world, I would love to have the rest of this book in my hands right now. I am anxious to know what Troyd does next!"
