Steve Campbell says

This book offers encouraging and challenging devotional readings aimed primarily at business leaders, but leaders of any type or even people who don't consider themselves to be leaders can profit from reading through these meditations.

Chad Manske says

A fantastic resource for any aspiring leader to re-dedicate his leadership and orient his compass to true north to high principles.

Frans Karlsson says

This contained many gems. It is mostly from a business people view but the principles that are taught are the same for everyday use. I like the fact that after the devotion were three questions that challenged the reader. Recommended.

Jonathan Beigle says

This is probably the best devotional I've ever read. I loved this book because it was written for me - a businessman that manages people and deals with several stresses in life. I had takeaways from nearly every day's reading. I especially enjoyed reading the devotionals written by CEOs, some of which I even know of from interactions from my job as an investment analyst. It is awesome to see people that the world calls "successful" living a life for God.
