A mouse who acts as a careful custodian of his book tries to guarantee his reader some peace and order in spite of escalating chaos.

A book is no place for tomfoolery, and this mouse assures us that his book is to be no exception. Just please ignore that Word-Eating Flying Whale, and--oh, no, the lights have gone out. Wait, what is THAT?! Nothing to fear. Everything is under control. . . .

Krys says

Funny, brief, silly. The book should be boring, but it's deceptive.

Jennifer says

Fun and silly in the same vein as The Monster at the End of this Book.

Kirsten says

Super funny. A staid mouse insists that the book will not be fun while ridiculous things occur behind him. After a while, he joins in. Pair this with "Snapsy the Alligator (Did Not Agree to Be In This Book)."

Notes on representation: The characters are all animals.

Michelle says

Fun quick read. I think kids would get a kick out of this one.

Edward Sullivan says

Au contraire. Plenty of chaotic fun.

JennE says

Aaaaaannnnddd. It wasn't.

I couldn't have picked a more fitting title for this book if you'd paid me.

This story-- or similar styles-- has been done many times. My "litmus" book per say, is The Monster at the End of This Book. In this version, a seriously nerdy mouse tries to convince the reader this book will not be fun, even if a Word-Eating Flying Whale appears. Then, the lights go out. Wait, what is THAT?! Nothing to fear. Everything is under control. Chaos ensues... but not even funny chaos. The most exciting page is, "Look at me! I'm "shaking my bottom" as it were." Young children will enjoy the illustrations, but the storyline is lacking suspense and earnestness of The Monster at the End of this Book.

Samantha says

Fun, but not as good as others of this type.

Colleen says

Liam says 'The title is one truth and one lie. The mouse DOES have fun.'

Adrienne says

Fun read-aloud

Steve Holden says

This is in the mold of picture books where the narrator speaks to the audience and encourages reading along with surprises and interaction. It has a silly premise, and these stories don't hold much of a plot, but if pulled off (Pigeon series by Mo Willems) it can be a hilarious read aloud and book that children want to read over and over.

I don't know if this one was executed in the same fashion as others, notably the Pigeon series, but I did find myself wanting to figure out the fun that would be had inside the pages! Silly things happen throughout. It might even be described as fun for young readers! This is fun, and would make a good read aloud for a silly moment.

Janet says

A bespectacled mouse is determined to have absolutely NO fun in this book, and his plans to stay bored are very quickly challenged. This is a cute read that will make kids and adults giggle.

Jasmine says

It's hard to do meta-textual picture books, but for me this one nailed it. A nerdy mouse is determined not to have fun or have anything exciting happen, but his plan is spoiled by a flying whale and some cronies.

Tyra says

Cute and ... FUN!

Brian says

I wish my kids were still young enough for bedtime stories, because this would be perfect.

Jamie says

I like the curmudgeonly mouse and the fantastical plot that brings him out of his shell; good illustrations too!
