Sara Eames says

This is an amusing book - if you enjoy "Bunny Suicides" then you'll probably enjoy this one. I especially like the Tooth Fairy lie and the reason offered for not seeing "ghosts when we visited the castle"...

It is a quick read - mainly because it consists mainly of cartoons but is great to while away a few minutes and put a smile on your face.

"Most birds wear parachutes in case they suddenly forget how to fly"

Veeral says

Andy Riley is at his best when he thinks up unique and gory ideas about bunnies committing suicide. So far there are three books in the bunny suicides series, and all are morbidly funny.

This book, not so much.

Stick to killing cute rabbits, Andy.

Zedsdead says

Andy Riley is an evil genius.

"If you spin around really fast and then stop your face will skid round to the back of your head."

"The statue of liberty switches hands when her torch arm gets tired. She only does it when no-one's looking. The next time should be in about twelve years."

"Birds wear parachutes in case they suddenly forget how to fly."

"Your dad is really a yeti. He shaves his entire body every morning."

"BEWARE GUITARS. A small hairy primate called a Warris lives inside every one. They live on a diet of human fingers."

"Squares have a secret fifth side that you can only see if you stare at it for a very very long time."
