Dominique says

I really liked this volume the characters are really growing and I love how they are using their affection for each other to help push themselves to be better.

Normally I find that most manga have a really great first volume that I love and all the other volumes fall flat. This one doesn't. I still love this one five volumes later. And it makes the teenage girl in me squee.

Kristine Hansen says

Finally, we see our heroes starting to recognize the complexity of their emotions for what they are. What I like is that we finally see them doing things separately, which is allowing them to grow in ways they couldn't otherwise. But with it comes the uncomfortable realization that they're holding each other back. Does this mean that this relationship might *MIGHT* be somewhat unhealthy? Oh, I hate to admit that...

This time, the manga is already completed, I am not sure if it was licensed in English but you can find it either on Mangafox or Mangatown completely translated and scanned.

Well, I can't say that I was feeling the same strengths from this manga as I felt from Unmasked Noise, but then again, this was the author's first work. However, the drawing style is still the same, which is amazing and fits the characters 100%. The story is focusing a lot on the character development and their feelings. There are many moments where you just shout at the character as to why they don't get each other. Especially Umi and Naka (the main characters). Their relationship is progressing fast and at the same time very slow. I was getting frustrated with both of them for not saying their feelings out loud. It was as if they were in a one sided mutual love. Doesn't make sense? Well, neither did it to me.

Naka is a really amazing character. Her development as a person as well as a model is really interesting to read about. Her scary faces cracked me up and I just couldn't get over her depression periods when she would sit in the corner of the room with the dark aura around her. Umi was the character that quite often frustrated me, but I still loved him a lot. Let's say a bit about Umi. He is a male, who works as a female model. No, no, he is not a cross dresser, and he likes Naka a lot, that's to say about his orientation. You will understand why he does what he does, when you read the manga. But I just can't bitch about it. I was frustrated with him, because he was jealous of a certain male model, but come on dude, you chose to be a female model, don't go around getting jealous about that guy.

There are many great characters, which have their own dreams and aspirations. There is the thread of heartbreak, however it doesn't really apply to Naka and Umi, I don't get it, but they managed to survive. I hope you will find some time to read Charming Junkie. It has a lot of funny moments and they will crack you up a lot. But they are also life matters as well, which will make you think about what to do. Enjoy it to its fullest
