The House by the Sea habe ich als Schullektüre für den Englischunterricht gelesen. Die Geschichte wird zu Beginn und zu Ende aus der Perspektive eines anderen Charakters erzählt. Der Hauptteil wird demnach von einer weiteren Person - Carl - erzählt. Trotz der wirklich einfachen Sprache und Wortwahl kann man so die Gefühle gut nachvollziehen, die der verlassene Ehemann durchmacht. Dafür zeigen die anderen Charaktere, außer Mary nicht sonderlich viel Profil, da sie schlicht und einfach zu wenig erwähnt werden. Nur leider ist die Story recht einfach gestrickt und demnach auch vollkommen vorhersehbar. Viele Wörter und Phrasen wiederholen sich, was erfahrenere Leser schon bald als recht anspruchslos ansehen könnten. Das Buch ist ziemlich dünn, man hat es schnell durch und ob man sich eine so leichte Lektüre anschaffen sollte, ist eher fraglich, für den Unterricht aber schön und gut.

It's your feelings when you lose something.

The story about Carl looking for his wife Linda.

The beginning of a story is beautiful when it has been identified an old friend begins to tell the story.

But the story is a bit boring.

Marah says

At first it caught me, but the end was lame. So I didn't like the end. But the rest of it was interesting, the author knew how to keep you in suspension.
