RavenT says

This is a sweet story that is appealing to any lover of books, libraries, cute crushes, and cranky student librarians.

I'd love to see more of these two...

This didn't have the polish of the previous stories but that's because it's a freebie on the website. The story, however, is adorable. We only get Elendt's pov from his journal excerpts at the beginning of each chapter. He's cute and manages to break through the wall that mage librarian, Carlis, has built around himself.

This was a seriously cute short story. I love free downloads but usually they are short and underdeveloped. I just thought this story was adorable. Carlis, the librarian, is a very grumpy mage who turns up his grumpiness on purpose so other people will leave him alone. It was really great to see Elendt slowly chip away at his armor. I would love this as a novella. The Jewel Bonds world is really interesting, but all of the stories are too short.

Me decepcionó el final. [SPOILERS--TERRIBLES SPOILERS]

Si tan rápido se iba a rendir, entonces no es mucho que lo quiere. Digo, viendo cómo es la actitud de Carlis, que siempre pone distancia entre él y los demás, y que siempre rechaza a todos. Elendth (?), si te vas a rendir a la primera que se enoja con vos, entonces buscate otro nada más.

Me gustó Carlis, porque a pesar de que era un jerk, él mismo lo reconoce, pero también da razones coherentes del por qué es así. Elendt me pareció tierno, pero me sacó eso de que se rindió al final. Si te gusta alguien, no tendrías que rendirte a menos que ese alguien exprese literalmente que no quiere saber nada con vos o que no se siente a gusto. Pero como Carlis no sabía nada de lo que estaba pasando, culpa de la 'timidez' de Elendt, entonces no tenía porque ir a buscarlo él a Elendt.

Pero bue, como siempre, final feliz, todos felices comiendo perdices y blablabla. Linda lectura, me hubiese gustado otro final, o más trabajo por parte de Elendt, pero todo bien.

Short story but very cute. Reminded me of the manga 'The Tyrant Who Falls in Love'. Carlis is a serious librarian, with a temper, and Elendt is like Morinaga, trying to 'court' him. And what better way that through books?
