The Carvers are a supernatural species created by a fairy that bound all the bloodlines (vampire, werewolf, fairy and witch) together. Although Carvers are stronger than their pure blood ancestors their numbers are small and getting smaller, and so, some have put away their magic to live in the human world, in hopes of a better life.

Two Carvers, one story.

Shane Carver is a bartender for Amber Line where his nightly frustrations vary between not letting his magic escape and choking the ever-living hell out of a shifter who desperately deserves it. Mercifully, he's able to subdue his fire magic to work and live in the human world.

But that's about to change when he breaks his one rule: No dating humans.

Beth Carver joins her sister at the bar only to run into the last person she ever wanted to see again, her high school crush. This time she's keeping her heart in check and plans to stay that way until he forces his way into her life one miserable situation after another.

Beth and Shane are pulled back into the magical world they left behind, all those years ago; to save the one person they both care about, a person who may not be human after all.

Danae Sorensen says

This story is a perfect concoction of action and steamy romance ideal for fans of the supernatural. Had I not started this at the beginning of summertime I would have devoured it in one to two settings easily. Thanks to Goodreads First Reads for hooking me up with another amazing author. I look forward to reading Book 2 "The Carvers Problem" later this year!!!

I won this book in GoodReads Giveaway.

This was... different.

It is Twilight and Harry Potter in one, sprinkled with fairies on top.

Werewolves mixed with vampires, fairies, humans and magical people.( I guess it is missing aliens.)

It is rather a novel for grown-ups or at least teenagers.( some sexual descriptions). Supernatural adventures, different creatures, love, magic, regular world- all in one novel.

I reached for it with a certain shyness... I wasn't sure what to expect. But I actually enjoyed it quite a lot.

Even though at the beginning I was seeing characters from Twilight and I was thinking about Harry Potter ( some similarities). But over all it is a quite unique read. We meet Beth Carver who is supernatural but is raised by humans. We meet her adopted sister Cory who turns out to be related to fairies. We meet another Carver- Shane and werewolf Dar.

There is love and secrets and some misunderstandings and magic and battles.

I don't want to say too much to not spoil it. But now I would like to read a second part.

Great start to a new paranormal romance series. It's unusual in that it's from the hero's POV. Really good fantasy world.

this was a goodreads giveaway

Original. Really enjoyed it, and am looking forward to more from this author- and I'm a critical jerk when it comes to my books.

The supernatural community wasn't very fond of the unique powerful, multi-blooded Carvers, but they'd defeated them once, changing their fates and would do it again. Carvers were forced to give up their children to be raised by humans until they were 18 in hopes that delay in learning their magic would keep them from realizing the full potential of their power.

When young Carvers Shane and Beth were taken to spend time with their biological families neither were receptive to hearing that they were the future of Carver domination and should seek out their carver mates and join the fight. Having learned bits of magic on their own, Beth and Shane decided on tamping down their powers and masquerading as human in the world they knew.

Bartender Shane looked forward to seeing a shy, tiny, dainty, human every Friday at the Amber Line but not her take no prisoners sister, Beth. Uncomfortable that Cory's drawn the attention of a swaggering wolf and Beth has drawn his ire. With a clientele of fairies, werewolves, witches, vampire and a smattering of humans, Shane's even less pleased when the sisters become his new workmates.

Beth is annoyed at having to bartend weekends at the Amber Line to protect Cory, Beth had pledged her heart to high school crush, werewolf Dar, while he healed from an accident. Afterward, Dar acted like Beth didn't exist and the years hadn't brought change. Dar still acted like Beth didn't exist even while forcing the wolf's attention from Cory and ignoring her.

Their human boss and customers are oblivious to the supernatural influx during sisters first weekend. Dar upsets Beth's equilibrium by coming both nights, Cory's infatuation with Shane may be coming to an end as she's assigned to work the closed door vampire area and Shane's off-kilter after seeing the fae police, his father's emissary, an obsessed werewolf and learns Beth's a carver too.

Readers will find an intriguing tale of supernaturals positioning for a species war, where enemies stand shoulder to shoulder, secrets and deception reign and no one can stand on the sidelines. The characters and the well paced story are easy to invest in and the multi-layered, exciting world had this reader saluting this author's heady debut.

The Carvers Magic

Well the ultimate mash up of supernatural powers has landed, the Carvers! A blending so powerful that the pure bloods of the supernatural world insist the children are raised by mortals without any powers. Less and less Carvers are born but this story brings two together and it's not going to be pretty!

Beth Carver and her adopted sister Cory might live amongst humans but they are hiding exactly what they are. Yet Cory in particular feels drawn to the taciturn barman Shane not knowing that he too isn't exactly your average Joe. No Shane is also a hybrid Carver and no matter how interesting Cory is Shane just doesn't 'do' humans! There's something about Shane that brings out the bad girl in Beth and she is determined to keep him well away from Cory but it turns out sweet little Cory has ideas of her own. Beth is getting slightly distracted though as events from her past are well and truly coming home to roost in the shape of the mighty fine werewolf Dar. Yet it doesn't matter that both Beth and Shane have left the magical world behind as the powerful Council are closing in!

This was such an interesting idea with not one but two possible romances wrapped within this story. Plus I really liked the super duper Carver idea with individuals being so powerful that the rest of the paranormal community felt threatened by them. What really surprised me was the ending as secrets get revealed that I would never in a million years have guessed at. Proof positive that when you use magic you never quite know just what you might change. Perhaps fate really does have a plan for us all?

Although the author does a really good job of allowing the reader to see different points of view I struggled initially to be completely pulled in. I think for me there wasn't enough dialogue at first and it almost seemed as if someone was telling me a story and I much prefer to feel that it's a living breathing entity and I'm a part of it. I hasten to add that the style does improve with much more conversation between the various characters . So was it a romance ? Hmm not exactly what you might expect and these Carvers seem to have quite a journey in front of them as their incredible abilities are well and truly tested.

First I would like to say thank you to B. L. Brooklyn for this amazing book.... What's better then a book full of faes, witches, vampires, and werewolves.... But there is another breed that is even better.... I loved this book hands down... I will say at first I was waiting for the hard core sex and when I didn't get it.... WELL I still wasn't disappointed because your story took the place of that desired and gave me a world I could image... I couldn't put the book down and that's no lie.. I can't wait till book 2 comes out... So that being said great... No... Amazing job and until next time....
