Detective?

It's one thing to be subtly observant and another to run around interrogating people when you have no authority to do so. And apparently even she thinks her Police detective boyfriend isn't competent. Well, I guess he admitted as much but he said he didn't even know where to take the investigation next. Still, I would expect somebody to get a punch in the mouth if they've run around town insinuating that people have committed crimes. This all seems very high school.

Sabrina & David

I enjoyed this book all of the murders have a surprise in them. I would recommend mystery lovers to read this. I don't think I will forget the phrase deadpan any time soon.

It took me a little while to get through this. It's not that I didn't like it, it was some of the wording that really turned me off. I really got tired of deadpanned, luckily it eased up in the last few books. Then the descriptions of each character was horrible, who wants to be known as the pear shaped man of the black haired woman through the whole series? Let the reader's imagination take care of how they look. That being said, they weren't bad reads, that is why I gave them 4-5 stars. I feel like I've become more of a book snob as I get older, and more picky about little things...give them a chance, they are cozy mysteries that you will enjoy...Oh, and one character to look out for and remember is her grandma!!! Her and Snickerdoodle were scene stealers!!

Read all ten of the books in this series and loved them all. Each one was unique and totally fascinating. Highly recommend this set to any and all mystery lovers. The characters are well crafted and they feel like friends by the time you finish the first book. Great friends by book 10. You will love Ms. Potts writing style, try it, you will not be sorry.

Sabrina Daley doesn't live what you might call a normal life. While she was still in high school, her older sister disappeared! As an adult, Sabrina has helped the police solve a number of cases that require a different viewpoint. She has been involved with solving disappearances, thefts, kidnappings, murders, arson, and even a ghost!

Sabrina's boyfriend is Detective David Carlson, who works for Treasure Cove Police Department. Sabrina enjoys helping him with investigations, much to his chagrin.

When Sabrina isn't helping David solve a mystery, she manages the family business, Daley Buzz Coffee Shop. The Buzz was started by her grandmother, Betsy Daley. Betsy is a feisty octogenarian, who still works at the shop. In addition, Elizabeth, Sabrina's mother, and Luke, her step-father, also work at the coffee shop on a regular basis. Occasionally, Sabrina will discuss the current case and the clues with her family.

Meredith Potts does a wonderful job of creating believable situations. This is especially true of the people, locations bystanders and witnesses. Over the course of the series, Sabrina has become a welcome friend. She has her problems, don't we all, but remains a consistently strong character. Sabrina introduces many friends, all of whom add to the stories, sometimes just to present misdirection.

The stories are told from Sabrina's perspective and often contain sub-plots that add interest, humor, and sometimes an extra level of intrigue to the books.

The situations and locations are all believable and many present puzzles that are never completely resolved, but that just makes the series more like real life!

Reads like Nancy Drew.

While reading this series, I thought for sure that a teenager wrote. Every book had the same questions, the same restaurants, the same chocolate frenzy. Definitely G rated, no sex, swearing, and lots of praying. I read all 10, hoping it would get better, but it was basically the same every time.

Review

Ok. Ten books here. Ok to read. But it's obvious you write by a strict formula. Each story is the same! Just different names. All down to the same wording. Exactly! Read the first story and move on to another book. Wasted time. Write with your heart. Not with a set formula. I'm gonna go and throw my arms out. LOL.

Kitten Peters says

Great book, charming stories with awesome characters. Author really pulls you in with her books. The Daley Buzz is a fun to read and a real page turner. Great price for ten books and no worries about reading out of sequence which I sometimes do when I download an entire series that are not box sets.

Author has good stories BUT

I bought this because it was the whole series for 99 cents. The first book was OK. Each book got a slightly less full. The details were similar not enriching. The expectations of the couple's investigations were not realistic and some of the legal arguments were questionable. The author has a good story outline for the whole series but lacks the depth needed to make this a good read.

Deborah says

Good story, horrible writing

This author needs a much better editor. The story ideas are good, and the main character is easy to root for but the actual writing is awful. It's painful to read! She uses the same tired like we over and over and seems to be writing for really stupid readers who can't infer anything without very detailed explanations. For example if the phone rings, I don't need to be told that the character said hello " into the phone. " I also don't need every character described with their age every single time: "the fifty-six year old....." . I kept trying to push through because it is a good story but the writing is just too annoying.

Claudia Wright says

How does Sabrina know almost everyone's age, even total strangers. The same features and expressions are used by everyone. They crinkle their noses when puzzled and throw out their arms when exasperated. The author also used words that did without understanding the meaning.

Dawn L Ovenden says

Disappointing

Not the best written stories. There seems a lack of conviction by the author resulting in flat characters. The plots are too linear with little or no suspense for the reader.
