Santosh Kashyap says

If its comes to Hindi literature, reading Phaneshwar Nath Renu is always delightful. The stories are of all kinds, the funny ones to serious ones all set in his contemporary rural India. From construction point of view the short story Raspriya is brilliant, Teen Bindiya subtle.

The language is always suited to the character with excessive use of regional words. Perhaps no other Indian author describes the rural India as microscopically as him. His characters are innocent and full of life.

Phanishwar Nath Renu's, work always have a reflection of strong rural ethos in his language and the idiom used the text, and most noticeable for its use of visual language. One of the most important author of Modern Hindi Literature.
