Vivienne Brown says

I love the mysteries and it was a great book.

Tiffany Neal says

This is one of those scholastic reader books that is leveled for grades 1-3, but I read it aloud to my kindergartner and preschooler. Even though I know it's not meant to be a read aloud, and it's meant for emerging readers, it was a cute story. Although I do have to say that the first person present tense and repetition of so-and-so says was extremely awkward for this type of story. Overall, it was an interesting mystery that involved a pony and a kitten, and what little girl can resist those two things?

Horace Mann Family Reading Challenge says

This book is about a girl who goes to her grandparents house and gets a surprise pony named Pepper. J.S.

Mundie Moms & Mundie Kids says

This is such a fun story to read, with a great message and great illustrations. Penny is a city girl and is spending the summer with her grandparents in the country. Not much a country girl, Penny makes fast friends and realizes there's a lot to love about being in the country. She learns to appreciate beautiful horse her grandparents got, along with the new kitten he finds.

Though my children are a bit younger, my daughter absolutely loved this story. This is a great story for horse lovers and young readers.

Shelly Koressel says

This is a cute adventure mystery book for 2nd graders. Penny is on a mission to find a missing kitten and rescues it. My little girl loved reading this she thought it was so neat to read her first mystery.

Aubrey says

the start of the book is penny the girl gets a horse named pepper from grandma and grandfather give a horse to penny and she is so superisid that she got a horse and pepper got lot in the woods and penny was wred that pepper would get lost in the woods. penny's friends helped penny found her horse and they did found the horse and penny thanked her friend for founding her horse and then they lived happily ever after. Penny haged out with her friends and horse and a cat penny found.
