Angel Lederhause says

very simple book. 4&5 year Olds love it.

Carina says

3-year old says, "read it again. and again. and again." He liked the action, and the simple story line where he could understand everything.

I thought it was just ok. Gets repetitive after a while because there's no subtle humour or much in the way of creativity.

Wade says

Another great LEGO book!

We ordered a lot of these books from the series for our library's collection. I am slightly disappointed in them. I thought the illustrations would be made of real legos, not computer graphics. The story lines are just so so. I wish the illustrators had been more creative and thoughtful. The great thing about legos is your taking solid shapes and building structures with them. It is a form of architectural art that kids really love. However these are simple computer graphics and the story lines are simplistic and unimpressive.

Melissa Namba says

a cute book for pre readers. kids who like fire trucks will enjoy it. it's a little sparse on basic words and most of what kids will pick up is the onomatopoeia.

Kieran says

There was fire in the houses and the bell rang at the fireman station and they ran in the fire truck and they got their boots on and hats and coats on and they went to fire truck and saved the world. The fire truck was coming and one sprayed out the water and the dog was jumping and they said "spray out the hose" and the dog held the hose. One fireman saved the cat. A fire helicopter came to save too and they spread the water out. And then they had to go home. Then they were sleeping. And that's the end. - age 4

Judah says

This book is a five star because all the fire guys are helping, like all the helicopter fire guys, just every fire guys is helping. None of the fire guys are being lazy.

Matt says

A great early reader for Neo to enjoy as he took the lead. When LEGO City is hit with a fire, those who are best equipped to fight it rush into battle. With spraying water and plans to attack from all sides, the fire is soon quelled and the town can rest again. Neo enjoys all things firefighter related and has found LEGO to be something with which he can pass his time as well (when not reading). I hope to be able to find the rest of the series for him soon.

Louis says

This is currently my three year old's favorite book. He not only has us read it, he looks for it and reads it (or at least he tells a story based on the book. He has also started playing stories based on the book with his Lego.

One Jack picked out from the school library. Enjoyed, but it was a little too easy for him.

My Review: I haven't been too sure about all these Lego shows or books, but Munchkin is really getting into Lego sets, especially the fire ones. This is a really great level one book, it features some of the actual lego sets so Munchkin got really excited about that. It also has short sentences with many familiar and easy words. The pictures are bright and vibrant. The story is great and moves along nicely and will keep young readers interested.
