The book is very modern despite being set in 19th century. It's about ethnic/religion minorities' assimilation. Til World War 2 in Poland there was very large community of Jews. The main character is elderly Jew named Mendel cause he was fifteenth child of his parents. He feels that he is Polish and he doesn't understand why he's refused being treated as a full-right citizen cause of his religion. Just because of being Jewish he becomes a victim of antisemitic pogrom and losses his fauth in Polish state.

Andrii says

Short story about antisemitism and anti-Jewish rioting in Gdansk. Very philosophical and profound.
