Ana is sad - she has to move away from her town and all her friends. Arriving at the farm that is her new home, Ana sees an unfriendly place with bad soil and no trees. But then she meets a man by the river nearby, who takes Ana on an adventure that will change her life forever...

The story brings Jeremiah 17 and other Scripture to life for readers of all ages, showing with beautiful imagery and analogy what it means to be a tree planted by the river.

I won this book on Goodreads. This is not the normal kind of book I read but it is a great Sunday School type of book and I will be passing it on to a friend who teaches Sunday School. The story does give encouragement in a way children will understand.
