Kandice says

This lift-the-flap book is so much fun for a little one. Added bonus for fine motor development!

Robin says

Yet another by one of my favorite, creative board book authors. Brand new to the library. This will be processed and on the shelf soon. I'm sure my story time families will enjoy this one!

Bree says

Cute kids book about all the parts of spring! Your little ones will totally enjoy the open the flaps and all the brightly colored pages. Although it lacks it's sing song tone it makes up for it in cute drawing like illustrations!

My kids and I love Karen Katz.

This was a present from Nana. Mommy and I read this book together a lot before nap time or bed time. I love to lift the big flaps, and I know the words and the signs for all the surprises underneath! Whenever we reach the page where there is a rain cloud, I shout, "oh no, it's raining!" and laugh a lot. Mommy and I like to name all the springtime clothes the baby is wearing (hat, boots, jacket, umbrella), and we point to all the flowers and birds on the different pages. This was a great gift! Thanks so much, Nana!

I actually love winter better, but this book is still alright. Flaps are always a hit, so are babies.

Meng Zhang says

It is a picture book for toddlers. The main character is the baby on the cover of the book. The setting is in the nature. It shows different kinds of plants that children will probably encounter in a spring day. It is also a flap book that will arouse children's curiosity and make reading fun for them. I will definitely recommend it.

Baby loves lift-the-flap books, never mind spring.

I am pretty sure I made The Velociraptor's day today. This arrived the other day, but I didn't open the box today, and as SOON AS ZIE SAW THE BOOK zie needed me to READ the book with hir.

This book features a non-gendered baby, lots of cute illustrations, plenty of flaps, and all kinds of springtime things, like worms, butterflies, frogs, and baby birds. Definitely a keeper in this house.

Meg McGregor says

Springtime is presented to your little ones with butterflies, worms, rain, flowers, birds, etc. all hidden behind big flaps. A super book your little ones will want to read over and over.
