Bachelor's Bait Mari Carr

Sophia Kennedy is determined to chase her own success, rather than ride her father's coattails. She's devoted herself to Books and Brew, the business she owns with her three best friends. She doesn't feel the need to explain herself to anyone, least of all the free-aid lawyer who's determined to judge her as a society princess. She'd ignore him altogether...if it were up to her mind. But nooooo. Her body just has to have its say—and it's using words like “gorgeous”, “hot” and “sexy”. Soon, annoyance turns to attraction, verbal sparring to physical satisfaction as the couple is drawn together by a common cause.

Marc Garrett has no time for a relationship. And he certainly doesn't want a rich society fixture, though the damning evidence below his belt suggests otherwise. The more he comes to know his hardworking princess, the more he wants her, again and again. Marc's falling hard, but after holding Sophie's wealth against her, how will she react when she learns of his own rather prosperous roots?

Loved it. Mari Carr's Cocktails rock. Sophi and Mark proved love conquers money. Mari Carr's characters in this series keep getting sextet and sexier.

keep it up. Can't wait for the next one to read Jayne and Elias story. Being the last girl at Books and Brews and the stories getting hotter I'm sure I'll need a screaming "O" of my own.

I am such a goner for stories like this. People who 'hate' eachother but it's so clear they are attracted to eachother as well and have great chemistry. I liked this one.

This was a great read. If you've read other books by this author you'll like this book. I love the setting of this series around Books & Brew. The girls are a group of BFFs who support, tease & have fun together. I loved how

Quick and easy

This was a quick and easy read, with a good premise and likeable characters. My only criticism is that its a little too quick and easy. He goes weeks with little to no contact, and when he does speak with her, he's casual and distant. Then as soon as he tells her that he really was just busy, she immediately folds and falls into his arms again. I don't buy that someone could go that long without having at least a little time to call or text. But, once again, that's why it's called fiction. Still a quick, fun read.

Assumptions: you know what they say about them.

When Sophia Kennedy mows lawyer Marc Garrett down outside the nail salon, he assumes the society princess is working with her father toward the same goal. After a mix-up with cell phones, Marc soon discovers his ideas about Sophie are as far from his original preconceived notions as he could be. The more

Sophie is around Marc, the harder it is to ignore her attraction to him, but she is determined to prove to Marc that he is wrong about what he says her father is planning. When she learns that he isn't, Sophie is determined to stop her father, and save the community center that holds so many happy memories for her. Marc is drawn to Sophie, but what will happen when she discovers that Marc is from a family every bit as prominent as she is, and that he held her family connections against her while hiding his own? As they work together to save the community center, can they learn to accept each other, and find the passion inside? Can they forget about family, money and connections, and focus on love and the future?

Bachelor's Bait is the third of Mari Carr's Cocktales books from Ellora's Cave. Each book focuses on one of the partners in the Book and Brew establishment, a combination bookstore and bar, and a very novel idea. I like the atmosphere here, and enjoyed the world Ms. Carr created for her four college friends to inhabit. Each title is also the name of a mixed drink, and Ms. Carr includes the recipe for the title drink in the book. Each of the characters are well defined and realistic, and these are people you might meet in any town.

Sophia Kennedy is smart, determined and loyal to friends and family, always giving folks a fair chance. I liked that Sophie didn't automatically side with her father, but instead took the time to get the truth about things. I also loved her zest for life, and her willingness to go all in for a cause when she believed in it. And her inner dialog about Marc was hilarious at times. I enjoyed watching as she fought so hard to resist him, but that she finally went with her heart.

Marc is smart, handsome and dedicated to helping people. He wants to make it on his own, just like Sophie, and I enjoyed watching as he came to realize how much he and Sophie had in common. I enjoyed the sassy conversations between Marc and Sophie, and the relationship they established as they fought to save the community center was delightful to watch.

The chemistry between Sophie and Marc was electric at times, and the secondary characters were as detailed as the main here and heroine. Ms. Carr is a master at building sexual tension, and this story had plenty to keep me on the edge of my seat, waiting to see when, not if, these two would connect. There is such a sense of camaraderie between Sophie and her partners, I could tell these women are in this for the long term success they so deserve. This is a wonderful romance, with hot moments, sarcasm, and a happy ever after that is well deserved. Do they accomplish everything they set out to do? I'm not telling, you need to read Bachelor's Bait and find out. But bring plenty of ice water, you'll need it.

This is book 3 out of 4 of the series. Sophie is co owner of a bar/bookstore along with three of her friends. On one of her worst days she meets Marc who is also having one of the worst days. He has preconceived notions about her because she is always on the society pages. They have this attraction ( I won't say love it's too soon for that) and hate for one another, but they have one goal in common and that is to save the community center. In the end as in all romance novels they can no longer fight their attraction.

A story that reminds us that sometimes the love of our life has such similar values to our own that we don't see them for what they are.

4 Stars

Bachelor's Bait is book three in the Cocktales series by Mari Carr. I have to say I'm loving this series, and I am sad we only have one left after this. This one is my favorite of the series so far!! I absolutely love the dynamics between Marc and Sophia.

Sophia is determined not to be considered a daddy's girl riding his coat tails, and she has worked hard to not be either of those things. She and her best friends have busted their butts to make Books and Brew a success, and she has absolutely no time for a man in her life. Certainly not the sexy as hell free-aide lawyer that thinks she is a society princess. She just needs to make her body agree with her head.

Marc certainly doesn't want a relationship with this rich society gal, but there is something in her that keeps calling him to her. The more he gets to know her he sees that he judged her wrongly, and that he really likes the true woman she is. Can they come together to not only fight for the same cause, but to find a true love with each other?

Like with all Mari's books this is a hot and steamy bunch of goodness!!! Like with each book by her it held me hostage until the end. I love the interactions between Marc and Sophia! They are a great couple!! I also love that we get to see the other gals, and see that they are truly living their happily ever after. I hope you enjoy this series and book as much as I do!!

Sexy and unashamed.

Love Carr's approach to women and sex. Fun read with flirty and sweet elements including just a tiny taste of some sugarkink.
