Not illustrated. Excerpt: Don't Judge a Girl by Her Cover is a 2009 young-adult fiction novel written by Ally Carter, it is the sequel to Cross My Heart and Hope to Spy and the third book in the Gallagher Girls series. It was published on June 9, 2009. The cover was released on March 19, 2009. As of February 28, 2009) Ally Carter posted mini-excerpts of the book on her blog, with the promise that while they would be in the book, they might be misleading. The book spent three weeks from June 19, 2009 to July 3, 2009 on the Children's Books version of New York Times Best Seller list, debuting at #6. The story starts with Cammie in Boston to visit Macey who is on the campaign trail to get votes for her father's vice-presidential campaign. During Cammie's stay, she, Macey and Preston (the son of the presidential candidate) are attacked on a rooftop, after the itinerary is changed. The girls barely make it out and are badly injured, after diving into a laundry chute. After the attack, Cammie remembers that one of their attackers was wearing a ring that she recognized but couldn't place. When Macey returns to Gallagher Academy, she is injured badly with a big yellow bruise and a broken arm. The Secret Service agent placed with Macey for her protection is Cammie's aunt Abby (Abigail), who Cammie had not seen since before her mom quit the CIA, and before her dad died. Macey has to leave the school to help her father get votes in Cleveland, Cammie, Bex and Liz are reluctant to let her go, but they have to. Mr Solomon takes the junior CoveOps class on a trip to Cleveland during the ev...More: <http://booksllc.net/?id=2201714>
