Zoe Hargrove's first solo assignment as a bodyguard is off to a rocky start. When she arrives at her client's lakeside estate, she learns she's expected to work undercover as a personal chef—a potential disaster since she can barely burn water—and her culinary assistant will be the client's latest invention, a robotic sous chef named GRAMPA.

And if that isn't enough, there's a dangerously handsome chauffeur, who looks more like a prize fighter than a car jockey. Zoe soon suspects he's hiding secrets of his own, but can she uncover them in time to stop the escaped criminal who threatens them all?

Beth Tilley says

Zoe Hargrove embarks on her first solo bodyguard gig. She's been hired to protect Marian, wife of Lyman Prescott, posing as a personal chef. However, cooking is definitely not her strong suit. She meets Dominic (Nick), the chauffeur, on her first day. Zoe quickly realizes that Nick is no ordinary driver. The two quickly team up to keep the Prescotts safe. Sparks fly immediately between the two. This story was a great ride of excitement and sexual tension.

The story starts out slow but then it picks up speed quite nicely.

Read full review in the 2016 December issue of InD'tale Magazine.

Jannine Gallant says

Boiling Point is a terrific addition to Ms. Henderson's female bodyguard series. Fun and quirky with unique characters and a quick pace, I was entertained from start to finish. And, I loved GRAMPA, the robotic sous chef! Touches like this make Henderson stand out from the crowd. You can't go wrong with this delightful and humorous read!

Sharon Buchbinder says

Zoe Hargrove, a former military MP, has joined a unique firm of female undercover bodyguards. While her boss is on vacation, a call comes in requesting a chef/bodyguard. Zoe isn't the best cook in the world—nor is she the worst.

She takes the assignment and meets her new clients, an eccentric inventor and his very pregnant wife who has a broken arm. She also meets their chauffeur, a ruggedly handsome, unsettling man named Nick Rosetti.

What the two don't know at first meeting—aside from the electric attraction pulling them together—is that each of them have been hired to be bodyguards, and both of them are not supposed to tell the person they are guarding.

I loved the premise of the book: a tough chef who can't cook, an equally tough chauffeur who isn't a driver, an absent-minded professor, and a fragile beauty—or is she?

The book has villains (no, I won't reveal who is the real one), action, adventure, romance, and takes place in a suburb of Chicago near where I lived for ten years, so I felt right at home.

Go for the action, stay for the romance! I give 5 cooking spoons to this fast, fun read.

I read a variety of books, but most of the time I read fantasy and paranormal. It takes a really good book to hold my attention if they don't have these elements. Boiling Point didn't have an ounce of paranormal in it, but it had suspense, true-to-life characters and so much more. The author led us through the budding romance of Zoe and Nick in such a way that you felt like these were friends and you were observing the small steps that blossom into a real relationship. I found myself sneaking in time to get back to the story. I'll be looking forward to enjoying more books by this author.

Loved It

This book is the perfect combination of light suspense and humor. The characters are strong and interesting, with definable quirks and the plot twists keep readers turning the pages. Well Done.

Brenda Whiteside says

I love stories about mistaken identity, or in this case, hidden identity. When a female body guard poses as a chef (and she can't cook), and a male body guard poses as a chauffeur (and he never drives), the humor is light in the midst of real suspense. Their attraction for each other, and their suspicion of each other, makes for fun reading while they try to protect each half of a couple in danger. Ms. Henderson created a very entertaining read.

Another wonderful romantic comedy (in places) with a touch of intrigue...the husband is the perfect absent minded professor type and the wife is adorable! Great boo.

I was chosen as a giveaway winner for this book. I thought this was going to be a suspense/thriller book, but I was very pleasantly surprised to find it also has humor. I ended up loving this book so much more than I thought I would. 5 stars all around, I would highly recommend this book!

Henderson/boiling point

This is a spin off from first book, involving Madeline security firm . Her other agent who works for her is Zoe .while Madeleine is on her honeymoon with Carter who was cia turned writer. Zoe accepted a job on her own for first time as agent, who goes undercover to protect wife of an inventor who has been threaten, not realizing the wife of said inventor hired a bodyguard also to protect her husband, whose name is nick, who use to work for Detroit police dept. In the mys t of all this ,you will find mystery, intrigue, and discovering oneself. You will enjoy the second book as well as the first. You will not be disappointed.
